Officer Involved In Shooting

Officers observed a white 1991 Honda Accord near Pierce and Sierra Vista. Owners reported the Honda stolen June 15, 1995 in Riverside. Officers attempted to stop the driver by using their emergency equipment. However, the car accelerated and attempted to evade for several minutes. It stopped when it hit the divider at the end of Dianna Street. The female driver fled on foot. They arrested her on Tyler Avenue near the 91 freeway.

A lone passenger moved into the driver's seat, placed the car in reverse and accelerated rapidly. Officers were approaching the car at the time. Suspect knocked one officer to the ground. The suspect did not injure him. The car continued back into the freeway fence onto the embankment. Suspect then attempted to drive forward again toward the officers who were on foot. They then shot at he suspect. One shot wounded the suspect and the officers got the suspect out of the car. Suspect continued to resist, managing to bite all three officers attempting to arrest him. All three officers are on routine leave, but they treated one at Parkview hospital for a shoulder injury.

Community Task Force Charges CSUSB With Discrimination

Vermont McKinney, investigator for the California State Justice Department and Arthur Fletcher, Chair of the nation's Civil Rights Commission are both in the neighborhood questioning the treatment of the former Basketball Head Coach at Cal State and the other charges brought forth by a community task force.

The following is the statement from the task force, chaired by Rev. Raymond Turner, Pastor of Temple Baptist Church.

The community task force was formed for the purpose of addressing numerous complaints pertaining to what we believe to be discriminatory practices at Cal State University San Bernardino. The task force is comprised of representatives from religious, social, community-based and corporate organizations. These entities are local state and national in scope.

The task force examined public and case specific documents, as well as conducted interviews with current and former members of the University community.

An on-going pattern of discrimination has targeted African-American at all levels of campus life, including faculty, staff and students. The letter written by CSUSB President Anthony Evans, in 1986, to then CSU Chancellor W. Ann Reynolds set the tone for this pattern which we feel continues to this day. The letter sent secretly to Reynolds under separate cover from the campus' official educational equity plan, indicated that minorities have "natural impediments" that would hinder equity efforts because "...I am not sure just how many underrepresented students are ready, emotionally and intellectually, for a university experience."

The pattern has been documented across all divisions and includes issues pertaining to campus climate, institutional policies and procedures, employment practices, and community relations. While these components may appear unrelated, they represent manifestations of what we perceive Dr. Evans' personal beliefs about non-whites in general, and African-American in particular are. The findings of several studies, and numerous incidents over the past decade serve to illustrate the pattern of discrimination.

In response to the 1994 Faculty senate Survey on Campus Climate, when asked if the administration was doing a good job, large numbers of faculty expressed extreme dissatisfaction about senior management; and, African-Americans expressed higher levels of dissatisfaction than did whites. ... important to note that the survey represented the highest reported return rate (70%) for faculty surveys.

In response to question # 2 on a 1994 campus diversity questionnaire, approximately one fifth of the faculty surveyed said that they had experienced racial or ethnic discrimination on campus. In addition, nearly half (49.2%) reported having witnessed or had friends who experienced incidents of racial or ethnic discrimination on campus.

In July 1994, a university employee attempted to submit a facility use form for the annual United Black Student Union (UBSU) sponsored by the Enrollment Services office. Other space was requested for luncheon and workshop space. Although the function was considered a university event, the request was denied for two reasons: (1) the employee was told that meeting rooms could not be reserved 6 months in advance; and (2) that the food area (Commons) was reserved for the Southern California Music Conference. After several subsequent attempts to reserve space, the employee was informed that the desired space had been reserved for the music conference. The precedent for this type of insensitivity was set years ago when prescheduled space for a minority event was cancelled to accommodate a dog show.

An African-American female was getting married and resigned effective a date in the future. When the engagement terminated, the African American attempted to stay in her position and was refused. This decision was made in spite of the fact that one White employee left the university for a new job, didn't like the job, and was allowed to return within weeks. This also happened when a Hispanic female decided not to resign, and both are still working for the University.

In 1990, there were three individuals apprehended for theft at the Coyote Bookstore. The first two were White and the third was African-American. After being chased and apprehended by a construction worker, the first White suspect was released after the merchandise was recovered; the second White suspect stole and pawned $1000.00 in jewelry and was subsequently released after being instructed to recover and return the merchandise. The third suspect, an African-American, was handcuffed and arrested inside the bookstore for stealing a $30.00 book. After African-American students complained about this being the only student ever prosecuted and convicted for a crime against the Coyote Bookstore, the administration filed criminal charges against the White student (several months later) who stole the $1000.00 in jewelry.

These, and approximately 30 additional incidents, have been carefully researched/documentated and, in the opinion of the Community Task Force, constitute an institutional environment hostile to African-Americans; these employment practices have resulted in a "revolving door" for African-American faculty and administrators, and has impeded advancement for African-American staff.

Headaches

Our Bodies

By Dr. Ernest Levister, M.D.

DEAR DR. LEVISTER: My doctor says there are different types of headaches. What are they? Headache sufferer.

DEAR HEADACHE SUFFERER: Like the common cold, headaches are not completely understood by medical science. Researchers have advanced numerous theories to explain them. Tension, personality traits, heredity and diet are a few of the factors that may play in chronic headaches. Headaches have been divided into three main types: Muscle contraction headaches, often called tension headaches, are usually associated with stress, exhaustion or repressed anger. The muscles of the head and neck may feel knotted, tender to touch, resulting in a feeling of tightness.

Some sufferers of muscle contraction headaches have been found to be suffering from depression as well.

Vascular headaches is another category in which the blood vessels of the brain are affected. Headaches from hangovers and hunger are due to vascular changes. Certain substances in food, such as Tyramine, have been shown to trigger headaches in sensitive individuals as they cause the blood vessels to dilate or constrict.

Migraines are a form of vascular headaches which tend to run in families with 70% of the victims being females. They are more frequent and more severe around time of menstruation, decrease during pregnancy and after menopause. Oral contraceptives may increase the incidence of these headaches. Sufferers are often perfectionists in their work and personal lives.

Cluster headaches strike in a group with the victim coming down with several headaches a day for days on end. They are cyclical and clusters may last for weeks with months of freedom from them. Most cluster headache sufferers are men. Heavy drinking and smoking have been implicated as contributing factors.

So-called exertion headaches have been triggered by physical activity including sexual intercourse and strenuous sports. They are probably vascular in origin, caused by the abrupt dilatation or constriction of blood vessels. With rest the pain goes away.

The third category is organic headaches which are symptoms of an underlying disease. The sudden onset of severe headaches in an individual who previously has been free of headaches can indicate a serious disorder. The most common disease that causes persistent headaches is high blood pressure. Less than one half of one percent of individuals who seek treatment for headaches are found to have a brain tumor.

Eye strain can cause a headache but it will go away as soon as you rest your eyes. Poor lighting or posture may also lead to a headache.

The advertising industry virtually invented the notion of sinus headaches. Persistent headaches due to chronic sinus problems or allergies are very rare. Sinusitis or allergies are almost never the cause of frequent headaches. A real sinus headache gets worse if you bend over.

There are many medications for headaches to include across the counter drugs, narcotics and mood altering drugs. They all have side effects and in some instances become habit forming.

In terms of migraines, Inderal is widely used as well as Ergot and its derivatives and Sansert. They, too, have side effects and one must chronically use them.

Although not scientifically established, several methods have been reported to be of value. Hot or cold packs placed around the neck or head can help muscle contraction headaches. Hot baths have been found to be beneficial. Vascular headache sufferers have been able to stop the pain by running cold water over the head. It constricts swollen blood vessels. Migraine victims have also found relief by putting their hands in warm water (not hot enough to burn) which causes blood to rush to the hands relieving the pressure in the head.

Massaging tense muscles also bring relief. Gentle massage to the forehead with fingertips moving from center to the side then upward at the side of the head to the hair line. If muscles feel knotted rub them with a circular motion.

Relaxation techniques to include exercise, meditation, Yoga and biofeedback are considered by some to be effective alternatives to drugs.

To Be Equal: Inner-City Gangs

By Hugh B. Price

There's a huge void in the lives of inner-city teen-agers which, tragically, is being filled by gangs.

Do you realize that during the 1980s, government spending on prison construction soared by 612 percent.

Meanwhile, society disinvested in the very programs - settlement houses, after-schools activities and park recreational facilities that keep young people off the streets, out of the clutches of gangs and in the hands of adults who genuinely care that they do well.

Amazingly enough, politicians label these initiatives social programs or worse,

This is an outrage, because it shows how oblivious they are to reality.

I believe that we must be tough on crime.

But given how tight things are financially these days, we've also got to be smart about curbing crime.

Prevention-oriented youth development programs may be among the most cost-effective ways of combating crime.

Mayor Bob Lanier of Houston told me recently that with the reopening of park-rec facilities in the evenings, violent youth crime in inner-city neighborhoods has declined sharply.

Mayor Emanuel Cleaver of Kansas City testifies that on the nights when midnight basketball is on the crime rate plummets by 25 percent.

This is why I've called on our Urban League organization to mount a campaign to place caring adults regularly in the lives of inner-city adolescents.

I know that those of us who have made it, thanks to the civil rights movement, can afford $250, $500 or more per year - this campaign at young professionals who are doing well but don't yet have heavy family obligations.

And at my generation. I call us the post-college tuition, pre-AARP generation.

There's a window of a few years when we have some disposable cash to spare and wouldn't miss $500 or so after all those tuition payments.

I've been working with the National Guard for the past five years.

They've created a terrific program for dropouts, called the National Guard Youth Challenge Corps. The youngsters take GED preparation courses, team-building and self-esteem courses, as well as participate in community service.

The Guard is getting some amazing results from this program, which operates in 15 states.

Imagine designing a school for disinterested students which draws heavily on what the military knows about fast-track learning, ranks and rewards, service and mission, purpose and planning, teambuilding and pride.

I'm pleased to report that National Urban League is partnering with a defense policy think tank, the Center for Strategic and International Studies, to inventory all the tangible and intangible assets of the military that might be helpful in addressing the problems of innercity youngsters.

Finally, have you ever thought about the fact that the U.S. military is the world's biggest and best organized gang?" Imagine how wonderful it would be if we could tap all of that expertise, to organize Community service gangs that give kids a constructive alternative to the lawless and violent gangs that now lure them.

Graduate Day Speech

Graduate Day Speech - Written and Presented by Geoffrey Kendall Bruner - Graduate Class of 1995

School was never one of my favorite things to do. In all my years in high school, I've always managed to get one "F" each semester at least. I never cared if I graduated or not. It made no difference to me because as far as I was concerned, I didn't need a diploma. All through high school I wouldn't listen to anyone to help me out. My mom kept telling me everyday that I had no future without a high school diploma. I never listened to her because I thought that I knew what I was doing and she did not. This continued all through school and by the end of my senior year I had a year to go. So I went back to my school for my fifth year. By this time my whole family was in shock because I kept saying I was going to graduate without a doubt. I looked like I would make it when the first semester ended, but in the second semester I stopped going to school. In the second semester of my fifth year in high school I failed every class except one. My family was so mad they wanted to disown me. After that, I couldn't go back to school again so I said I would go to adult school, but I never did. If it wasn't for my Uncle John I would still be saying that today. He drove me down to school so I could sign up. Once I got signed up, I knew the work wouldn't be that hard, I just had to make sure that I went everyday and did my work. One thing that kept me in school was the thought of being a senior three times. There is no way I was going to let that happen.

Religion A Strong Factor In Health Of African-Americans

African-Americans who keep the faith are more likely to keep their health.

In a study based on a national survey, researchers found that Blacks who scored the highest on measures of religious activity also reported being the healthiest. "Religion seems to be an equalizing factor for African-Americans in terms of health," says Kenneth F. Ferraro, a Purdue University professor of sociology. "White-American overall are healthier than African-Americans. However, the health status of Blacks who attend religious services at least two or three times a month, for example, is similar to that of Whites who say they never attend church."

Ferraro conducted the study with Jerome R. Koch, a visiting assistant professor of sociology at Texas Tech University. Their findings were reported in the Journal for the Scientific Study of Religion.

The study was based on a national survey of 3,617 adults. They were asked how they would rate their health and whether they had certain health problems. They also were asked to rate their religious beliefs and how often they sought comfort in religion.

Ferraro notes that religion is a more important predictor of health for Blacks than for Whites. "While studies show on average that all religious people enjoy better health than nonreligious persons, we found that religion had its greatest positive effect on the health of Blacks," he says.

In addition to the comforting aspects of religion, Ferraro points out the health behavioral practices associated with religion. "Moderation and Sabbath rests may also benefit one's health," he says.

Religion is an advantage sought more often by Blacks than Whites. "Blacks are more religious," Ferraro says. "In terms of religious identity, practice and the consolation or comfort they receive from religion, Blacks score higher on each of these indicators."

The strength of the church has remained even though African-Americans have made political strides. Roger Finke, a Purdue associate professor of sociology, says some academics thought the church might lose its importance once civil rights were attained. "That didn't happen," he says. "Today the Black church is must as strong as ever. In fact, most Black churches are either growing or holding their own."

For African-Americans, the church is one of the institutions that seems to be responsive to their needs. In terms of coping with the world, it's a unique resource."

Our program, "Right Decisions, Right Now," teaches kids to say no to cigarettes, and to resist peer influence.

We offer parents, both smokers and non-smokers, brochures which help them talk to their kids about not smoking.

To make it tougher for minors to buy cigarettes, our program "Support The Law. It Works." provides signs and training videos to retailers.

ACTIONS SPEAK LOUDER THAN WORDS.
WHAT THE R.J.REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY IS DOING TO DISCOURAGE KIDS FROM SMOKING.

R.J.Reynolds Tobacco Company does not, under any circumstances, want kids to smoke. It's also the law. In the U.S. it's illegal to sell cigarettes to anyone under the age of 18. That's why R.J.Reynolds Tobacco Company has created a number of programs designed to discourage and reduce underage smoking.

Our "Support The Law. It Works." program helps retailers make it tougher for kids to buy cigarettes. So far, more than 50,000 retail outlets have received our display materials, training videos or information for their staff. More than 600 law-enforcement agencies have responded. And the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce has incorporated the materials as part of their youth non-smoking initiative.

We know regular compliance checks to ensure retailers are upholding age restrictions work. In fact, a recent study* indicates clearly that enforcement of minimum age restriction laws currently on the books can reduce sales of cigarettes to minors by at least half. And when it comes to sampling programs, R.J.Reynolds' policy, like that of all American tobacco manufacturers, prohibits distribution to anyone underage.

Our "Right Decisions, Right Now." educational program helps teach school children to say no to peer influences that might lead them to smoke. It provides teachers with posters and teaching aids, (none of which identifies R.J.Reynolds), parents with brochures designed to help them discuss smoking issues with their children, and offers Public Service TV messages. More than 10,000 middle and junior high schools are using elements of the program, reaching more than 3.3 million students, and we continue to distribute more.

More effective enforcement of current laws together with continuing education is a proven way to address this issue.

If you haven't seen any of our materials in your schools you may like copies of our posters. You may also be surprised by just how useful our guides on talking to kids about not smoking can be. If you'd like any of these materials, including the display aids used in retail outlets, please call 1-800-862-2525 or return this coupon to R.J.Reynolds Tobacco Company, P.O. Box 5, Winston-Salem, NC 27101.

Bowe Flashes Form That Made Him Champ In KO Win

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

LAS VEGAS - Focused, in shape, mad, in need of revenge, looking to get back into the upper echelon of heavyweight fighters, Riddick Bowe, former heavyweight champion, was all that and more.

In battle against an opponent that had beaten former heavyweight champion Lennox Lewis, 1984 Olympic gold medalist Tyrell Biggs, triple Olympic gold medalist Teofilo Stevenson and Bowe himself in a super-heavyweight semifinal at the Pan American Games in 1987, Bowe (37-1, 31 knock-outs) had good reason to train and be prepared against 6-foot-7, 239 pound Jorge Gonzalez (23-1, 22 KO's) of Cuba.

Add in the grotesque and somewhat bizarre verbal exchanges that occurred in the pre fight buildup, then you have the makings of a war.

Bowe, to his credit, did not let the pre fight madness intervene into his objective and came in focused, while letting his fists speak volumes during the fight at the MGM Grand Garden before about 7,000.

All three judges gave Bowe every round prior to his sixth round knockout with 1:10 remaining. He showed his opponent that he has evolved and is a much more mature fighter than the 20-year-old Gonzalez beat in 1987, as he dropped the challenger like a sack of bricks in retaining his World Boxing Organization championship.

"At the time of the first fight I didn't know how to feint or use my head, but now he's the inexperienced one at being in with the top guys in the upper echelon of boxing," noted Bowe prior to the fight.

Proving to be a soothsayer, Bowe was all smiles and feeling good about his convincing effort.

"I feel pretty good about the fight tonight," Bowe, who weighed 243 pounds, said in the post fight press conference. "I'm happy Father's Day is coming. I'm getting on my big blue bus and going home."

And Bowe, who lost his WBA and IBF titles to Evander Holyfield in 1993 at Ceasars Palace, deserves his leisure ride home. After putting on a performance that saw him connect on 188 of 302 punches, while Gonzalez landed only 52 of 161. Bowe was ready to say the least.

Bowe never let Gonzalez into the fight, controlling the action from start to finish. He had the Big Cuban in trouble numerous time throughout the contest and noted that he "wasn't angry" with all the nasty talk before the fight, because he "just had a job to do." But, he did admit he wanted to "punish Gonzalez a little" and let him know he can't go around saying things like he did about people.

Added Bowe's manager Rock Newman, between his chants of we want (Mike) Tyson: "Gonzalez put up a game effort, but he was out gunned, out managed, out fought, out classed by the best heavyweight on the planet."

Bowe's back on track and in thick of Tyson heavyweight sweepstakes.

Gonzalez, who defected from Cuba in 1991, after an eight year run as the top amateur heavyweight in the world, he missed the '84 and '88 Olympic Games because of his country's boycott, finally gave Bowe the respect he deserves, saying: "The remarks were something that happened, but Riddick was ready to fight tonight. We always knew he had heart, because he is one of the best heavyweights in the world."

Continued Gonzalez: "I felt weak from the beginning and when I got caught in the first round, I never recovered. I had a bad day and on any day you can lose. It just wasn't my day."

Walking away from the MGM Grand Garden with BVN photographer, Hassan Ali-Bahar and a couple of other writers, we encountered referee Mills Lane who worked the Bowe fight and he put Bowe's effort and future in prospective, saying: "If Bowe is committed and realizes that the 5:00 am roadwork and three hour training sessions is his nine-to-five job, five days a week, then he can be the best heavyweight in the business."

Bowe collected $1 million for his effort and Gonzalez walked away with $300,000.

Last Word From Houston And NBA Finals

Houston's Olajuwon and Rocket mates go back-to-back, while Orlando's O'Neal and Magic just have to wait.

By LELAND STEIN III
BVN Sports Editor

HOUSTON - BELIEVE IT! AGAIN!

As I rode back and forth from the Summit to the hotel, all around town banners and signs bore the words, "Believe It! Again!"

Surely the Rocket's fans believed it as the start of game four was about to get under way and their Houston Rockets were firmly in control of the NBA Finals, leading the series 3-0 against the young Orlando Magic from the East.

After 48 frenzied minutes inside the Summit, Houston's coronation as sovereign kings of the NBA was completed, following its 113-101 win before 16,611.

Led by All-World center Hakeem Olajuwon, who blew through every center in the playoffs averaging over 30 points per game and Clyde Drexler, the young-old sprinter, the Rockets have changed the name of their town to Towston.

"I can't say that this win was more special than last year's, but it has a special place because of all the things we went through and Drexler," said Olajuwon to the media after winning the championship and collecting the Finals MVP award as icing on the cake. "Maybe teams will look at us and get hope for next year. If they had a record that wasn't that great there is always hope."

Listen up NBA wantabees, Olajuwon knows what he's talking about. In fact, Houston had the second worst regular season record of any NBA champion, finishing at 47-35. Only the 1978 NBA champion Washington Bullets had a worse regular season record at 45-38, when they defeated the Seattle SuperSonics 4-3.

As the regular season ended and the playoff began, the "Believe It Again" signs were . . . well, something that was not believable.

With Utah, Phoenix and San Antonio the roads that had to be traversed before they could even think about the Finals again, their plight look bleak, to say the least.

But as Olajuwon noted: "You have to believe that somethings are beyond human explanations. Its a matter of faith. The faith that we have in our team, no matter the situation . . . You play as a team and anything can happen."

Miracles seem to await Houston at every turn during their playoff flight.

First they trade power forward supreme, Otis Thorpe, for Olajuwon's Phi Slamma Jamma teammate Drexler, leaving a large hold in the rebounding department. Plus, back-up power forward Carl Herrera gets hurt in the first round of the playoffs and is lost for the duration. Bad moves all around, noted every basketball expert.

Then the playoff miracles start.

Utah is put out to pasture despite having the home court advantage. Phoenix takes a 3-1 lead and promptly loses two games at home including the seventh on a Mario Ellie 3-pointer with seven seconds remaining. San Antonio with the best regular season record in the NBA, saw Robert Horry drill them in the last seconds of Game 1 and 6 with clutch 3-pointers, game set match, bring on Orlando.

With Shaquille O'Neal and Penny Hardaway leading a young got nothing to lose bunch of magicians, it appeared the Rocket's flame might just run out of magic. But in the first game of the NBA Finals Orlando led by 20 points in the second half, but saw Kenny Smith nail a 3-pointer that took the game into overtime and the Magic lost it there.

Houston magic? Luck?

"We practice so much on our 3-point shooting," said Houston Coach Rudy Tomjanovich. "We try to always put them in a pressure situation, so something is riding on the shot in practice. We don't set up a play, we create to the situation. You react. It's the way we live. It's part of the Rocket's system."

In sweeping the Magic, the Rockets became only the fifth team in NBA history to do so. The last being the Detroit Piston in 1989 when they won four straight from the Los Angeles Lakers.

Said Shaq to reporters after the loss: "Hey, we have nothing to hang our heads about. we played hard and gave it our best effort. Houston was the better team and deserve the title. I believe we will get another chance someday."

Yes, it was the Rockets year to weave magic on the NBA, but the future still looms bright for Orlando who had some dues pay before they get that championship feeling.

NOT YET: Orlando's Shaq O'Neal (#32) could only watch as the Rockets blew by his team. Photo by Cassandra Overby-BVN

Superfest To Feature Motown Stars Boyz II Men

The Budweiser Superfest — the nation's premiere rhythm and blues concert tour, will come to the Irvine Meadows Amphitheater at 7:00 p.m., Saturday and Sunday, August 19 and 20, it was announced today by Anheuser-Busch, Inc. representatives.

This year's Budweiser Superfest — the sixteenth annual edition — will feature Boyz II Men, the superstar Motown R&B vocal group, hip hop trio TLC and newcomer Montell Jordan for both show dates.

"We are very excited to have Boyz II Men headline this year's Budweiser Superfest," said Robert Lachky, Vice President Budweiser Brands. "During the past three years, this group has earned virtually every award and accolade in the music industry. Boyz II Men is popular all over the world and Budweiser is extremely proud to present them to music fans across the country.

Winners of seven Grammys, three American Music Awards, two Soul Train Awards and two MTV Awards, Boyz II Men has received great praise for its current album of original material, II. The album contains the hit single I'll Make Love to You, which, along with the group's previous classic single End of the Road (from the Boomerang soundtrack), gives Boyz II Men two of the top three longest-running number one singles in the history of the Billboard charts. And if that isn't enough, II also contains the popular hits On Bended Knee and Thank You.

TLC made their debut in 1992 and quickly redefined what r&b listeners could expect from a female act. The trio has successfully combined comical wit and intuitive lyrical direction with the undeniable groove and swagger of the urban life. CrazySexyCool, their latest multi-platinum album, has already produced two hit singles Creep and Red Light Special.

Montell Jordan's eye-popping overnight chart success

Boyz II Men

stands out as much as his 6'8" frame. The Los Angeles native grew up listening to the sounds of Stevie Wonder and Nat King

Cole and to many, his voice recalls the singing styles of Teddy Pendergrass and Marvin Gaye. The first single, This Is How We Do It, from his debut album of the same title, quickly caught fire and is currently at the top of the Billboard r&b and Hot 100 singles charts.

"This year's Budweiser Superfest will feature true trailblazers and innovators in the music industry," said Lachky. "It's the kind of mega tour that should not be missed by any music fan."

Ticket prices for the Los Angeles Budweiser Superfest concert are $50, $35, $27.50 and $22.50 and can be purchased at all Ticket Master outlets.

Budweiser is a product of Anheuser-Busch, Inc., the world's largest brewer.

Each week, the park will feature 10 evening performances with name talent in the America Gardens Theater. The event kicks off at about 5 p.m. each day with animated Disney favorites shown nightly at 9 p.m. on the village Dock Stage.

"On Our Own" Star To Headline At Irvine Improv

Ralph Harris is the star of the ABC-TV hit sitcom "ON OUR OWN," which airs on Fridays at 9:30p.m. Ralph portrays "Josh Jerico," the eldest of seven siblings, recently orphaned and faced with the challenge of keeping the rest of the family together by duping social workers, teachers, the telephone repairman, and anyone else who might suspect there isn't adult supervision. The show features Ralph portraying adult characters, including "Mama J." the kid's elderly, flamboyant, overprotective Aunt. It takes a team of makeup and wardrobe artists more than five hours to transform Ralph into the recurring character of "Mama J." Ralph has even found a way to keep from shaving for the role! Ralph was "discovered" by members of the ABC Casting and Development Department, when they attended a comedian's showcase at Hollywood's famous club, The Laugh Factory — the rest, they say, is network history. Harris will be headlining at the Irvine Improv through June 25th.

MCA Records Celebrates Black History Month

Throughout the month of June, MCA Records will join the nationwide celebration of Black Music Month with an exciting schedule of new album and single releases, concert performances and special retail promotions featuring MCA artists and product.

An extensive national retail campaign will focus on MCA Records' most anticipated new releases, including Gladys Knight, Mary J. Blige, Jodeci, IV Xample, Soul For Real, Monteco, Chante Moore, the Lost Boyz and the soundtracks to the films Tales From the Hood (featuring music by Domino, Spice 1, Scarface and Havoc & Prodeje) and the upcoming Dangerous Minds (featuring music by Rappin' 4-Tay and Big Mike).

MCA will also implement special pricing and positioning of MCA artists and product at independent retail stores and selected retail chains all across the country, including the Sam Goody music and video super-combo store on Universal City-Walk and the 67 Sam Goody and Musicland stores in Los Angeles County.

Also in June, MCA superdivas Patti LaBelle and Gladys Knight will join in the celebration of Black Music Month. BET's new in-depth artist profile show, Lyrically Speaking, will feature LaBelle. Then, both LaBelle and Knight will perform at the Essence Music Festival in New Orleans, LA. Later, on June 27, Knight will jet back to Los Angeles, to be honored with her own star on the Hollywood Walk of Fame.

Cotillion Ball Brings Out Best In 'Nubian Pearls'

The first AKA Eta Nu Omega, Chapter Cotillion entitled the Nubian Pearls of Distinction, was a success as a large crowd showed up to support 10 young ladies.

The lights were lowered the spotlight came on and the queen Lena Adebawale, who hails from Nigerian heritage, entered the room all 6'2 feet of her. She was followed by the regal Jalin Brooks and Regina Brown. As the girls entered the room, Edna Herring-Young, former Principal at Eisenhower High School presented information about the accomplishments of each debutante. Nubian Pearls Kendra Elaine, Taryn Foster, Schkeena Lathon, Princess Lee, Michele Cherie Merricks, and Shekira Reynolds all followed. Each gown was just as beautiful, as the one before, all were breathtaking.

The AKA presentation was wonderful, the emphasis was placed on presenting each girl. However, awards were presented at the luncheon held the week prior to the ball.

Awards were presented to: Schkeena Nicole Lathon, First Place (Academics); Princess Alicia Ann Lee, Second Place (Academics); Regina Brown, First Place (Entrepreneurial); Jalin Alizabeth Brooks, Second Place (Entrepreneurial); Princess Alicia Ann Lee, Second Place [Tie] (Entrepreneurial); Shekira Cecilia Reynolds, Third Place (Entrepreneur-

Moreno Valley Youth Succeeding Through Adversity

Disappointment, sadness, pain and loneliness comes to all of us. "Why must this terrible experience happen to me?" many ask. "How can a loving God permit this tragedy? Is He Dead?" "Why is He called good, merciful, and long-suffering while everyday men, women and children are crushed by agonies almost beyond endurance?"

Some people may ask these questions—those who hated God, as well as Christians who are bewildered and confused by disappointments. When sorrow comes it is natural for us to question, doubt, and blame and even become bitter and withdrawn. Danisha Crowder, a Fourth grade student at Ramona Elementary School in Moreno Valley, chooses to be successful in spite of adversity in her life. At the age of seven she suffered the loss of her mother, by the hand of her father.

Danisha Crowder

Crowder, with the help and prayers of her grandparents, Billy and Shirley Johnson has been able to rebound from the tragic loss of her mother and once again has her feet on solid ground. She is an excellent student who has consistently been on the Honor Roll for the past 3 years and has received recognition for perfect attendance and her excellent writing skills. Her poetry has been published in the school's newspaper. She was selected with four other students to write short stories for children. When asked, "What are your favorite subjects", she replied, "All of them."

Danish accepted the Lord as her personal savior when she went to camp last year with Grace Bible Church. She attends Riverside Faith Temple Church with her grandparents who are her legal guardians since her tragedy. Like her mother, who rode and cared for horses, Danisha loves to ride horses and once enjoyed having her own. She also loves to run and her grandfather is teaching her how to play, Tennis. Danisha desires to be a Pediatrician when she grows up. Tanisha says, "I like to help people and being a Pediatrician I can help a lot of children."

Danisha is a very loving ten year old who enjoys helping her grandmother around the house and her teacher at school. Her teachers says, "Danisha always looks good, smells good and lights up the classroom."

May God bless you Danisha in all your endeavors. May you continue to be successful throughout your life as you look to the Lord for help and strength.

Good Examples Are the Best

Our Children are Watching Us Live

When we show them our love, they will be loving.
When we are thankful for life's blessings,
they will be thankful.
When we are friendly,
they will be friendly.
When we speak words of praise,
they will praise others.
When we set an example of honesty,
our children will be honest.

When we are patient,
they will be patient.

When we face trouble with a brave spirit, they will learn to live bravely.

When we prove our faith by the way we live,
they will have faith.

When we teach by our example and start climbing, they will follow.

San Gorgonio High School Adopted

Adoption is the discovery of a new family. For San Gorgonio High School, adoption means support and altruism from local businesses. Recently San Gorgonio High School was adopted by Walt's RV, the San Bernardino County Blood Bank, Hilton Hotel, and Arrowhead Springs Resort.

Walt's RV decided to adopt San Gorgonio because they have an overload of materials from their business, and they saw a way to help the high school. They said, "We have more materials than we need, so we donated our wood to the woodshop classes."

The San Bernardino Blood Bank adopted San Gorgonio because they feel a need to have contact with local schools since their goal is to educate the public about donating blood. In addition, they provide career opportunities to high school students who are interested in nursing and other health care services. The Blood Bank can also count on San Gorgonio's staff members and students to help during blood drives.

The hotel management courses at San Gorgonio have brought graduates much success in the hospitality field. The Hilton Hotel has been instrumental in providing internships and donating equipment to these classes. Students who go through the hotel management course have a 40 percent employment rate when they graduate.

Principal Phil Haley said, "We are happy to be involved with these business who are willing to give supplies and work experience to our students." San Gorgonio High is part of the San Bernardino City Unified School District.

San Gorgonio High, S.B. City Schools ASB President, Dominique Williams and Principal Phil Haley.

Dreams

All parents dream of putting their kids in a seat of education. In this seat a child grows up to be a grade "A" student.

The student dreams of academic achievement, leadership,
and success.

To help
these students,

the Thurgood Marshall Scholarship Fund provides for the brightest, at historically black public colleges and universities.
Feeding their passion for knowledge.
And giving them the power to realize their dreams.

BECAUSE THE PRESENT IS OUR FUTURE.
